DEATH.

At Lancaster, Ohio, U.S.A., on the 26th August, Mrs. MARTHA T. MALLORY, aged 73 years.

OUR DEPARTING COUNCILLOR.

HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1890.

EXACTLY twenty years ago ALEXANDER PALMER MACLEWEN came to Hongkong, and for that lengthened period of time he has been identified with the old established firm of HOLLIDAY, WISE & CO. During these two decades Mr. MacEwen has been a very important factor in the political, commercial, and social life of the colony.

A Scotchman of splendid physique, he quickly made a name for himself as an athlete, and for the first half dozen years of his residence he was sacré princeps as an oarsman and sculler, and on the cricket field and in other branches of sport fairly held his own with the best and bravest. The advance of years and the inevitable increase of adipose tissue—what a deal the easy sort of life one leads in a hot climate has to answer for!—placed the crack sculler on the retired list, and then Mr. MacEwen blossomed out into one of our leading merchants, a prominent member of the Chamber of Commerce, and eventually attained the high honour of representing the Chamber in the Legislative Council. And all the time he was a keen supporter of those sports and pastimes which have made Britons famous all over the world. The Victoria Recreation Club has much to thank him for; at our annual Regattas he was always to be found with his experienced counsel and liberal aid; when a man was short in an important cricket match, MacEwen was almost always available; the "violet jacket, white sleeves and cap" was a popular if unlucky banner at our annual racing carnivals in the Happy Valley; and the now prosperous and prospering Golf Club owes much to his energy and devotion to the grand old game. Of Mr. MacEwen's commercial career in this colony it is scarcely necessary to speak; he has carried his good name unsullied through troublous times more than once, and in no small degree has proved invaluable to the firm with which he has been so long connected. As a public man he has, during his comparatively short career in the Legislative Council, done excellent service both for the interests assumed to be represented by the Chamber of Commerce, and for the community at large. He has eschewed toadyism to anyone; he has worked hard for the public interest, and his manly independence has secured him wide-spread popularity.

The Hon. A. P. MacEwen leaves Hongkong to-morrow for London, where his future lot will be cast, and before he leaves his numerous friends and admirers will meet at the City Hall at 12.15 p.m., to publicly show some slight appreciation of his worth by presenting him with a piece of plate as a souvenir of the colony where the best years of his life have been spent, and in recognition of the useful work he has done both in his capacity as unofficial legislator and as a private member of society. Mr. MacEwen is fairly entitled to all the honors the community can bestow on him, and we are paying him no empty compliment in saying that by his departure Hongkong loses a most useful man whose place will not easily be filled. Vale!

TO-NIGHT the "Military Mimmers" will give their second performance of "The Ticket-of-leave Man," at the Garrison Theatre. There was a full house on Monday night, at the first representation, and equal success to-night may be taken for granted.

We would direct the attention of our readers to the appeal from the Superiors of the Italian Convent, published in our advertising columns. The object sought to be attained is a most deserving one, and we are sure that the worthy lady's appeal will not be in vain.

A new shell has lately been invented by an Austrian for the purpose of scattering oil over the waves during a storm. It is a wooden cylinder lined with shellac to keep the oil from penetrating the wood, and it carries in addition a calcium light, which illuminates the water for a considerable distance.

LOOK after your watches! The police are prosecuting an apparently vain search for a gold watch and chain and set of gold studs worth, in all, about $300, which a rascally member of the light-fingered fraternity abstracted from the bed-room of Mr. Fisher, in Duval street, on Monday night. It is supposed that the thieves got in to Mr. Fisher's house by climbing up the scaffolding which is erected there in connection with general repairs that are going on just now. Another gold watch was recovered to-day by Detective Sergeant Haddon.

SOCIÉTÉ FRANÇAISE DES CHA-
BONNAGES DU TONKIN.

An extraordinary meeting of the shareholders of the above Company was held at noon to-day, for the purpose of passing several special resolutions.—Mr. Bavier-Chauffour presided, and the Hon. C. P. Chater, Hon. J. J. Keewick, Messrs. T. Whitehead, H. N. Mody, A. G. Morris, D. Nowrojee, M. Grote, T. I. Rose, J. Eckel, E. Solomon, and C. George (secretary) were present.

The Chairman, according to French form, announced that the shareholders present represented 6,190 shares, value 3,095,000 francs, and equal to 205 votes. The two principal shareholders, Mr. Chater and Mr. Mody, were invited to act as scrutineers, and Mr. Grote as secretary. He then said:—

The reason this meeting has been convened is to submit to your approval a scheme to authorize the issue of debentures to the amount of $600,000, in 6,000 debentures of one hundred dollars each, Haiphong currency, which loan will bear interest at the rate of eight per cent. per annum and be secured by the hypothecation of the property of the Company. At our last meeting on the 21st May we drew your attention to the fact of our capital having been exhausted, and we informed you that your Directors were already considering the means of meeting the requirements of the Company for the continuation of the work. We have since arrived at the conclusion that the most suitable and practical way to meet our wants would be to raise the money required by way of a loan, and mortgage the property, which will gradually be paid off from our revenue, thus gradually reducing the extreme limit for the redemption of the debentures to six years, from 30th September 1890, it being left to the discretion of your board to anticipate such reimbursements and to such amount as they may think fit from the 30th September 1891. I now have the pleasure to submit to your approval the following resolution:—

"This extraordinary general meeting of shareholders authorizes the issue of 6,000 debentures of 100 dollars each, Haiphong currency, at par, bearing interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, to be paid off within six years from the 30th September, 1890. The meeting leaves it to the discretion of the Board of Directors to fix the dates of such issues and their respective amounts. The Board of Directors to have the option of paying off part or whole of the above loan at any time between the 30th September 1891 and the 30th September 1896 by giving three months notice in the local press of Haiphong and Hongkong of their intention so to do by way of drawings."

Mr. Chater seconded, and it was agreed to. The Chairman next proposed:—"That this extraordinary general meeting of shareholders authorizes the hypothecation of the mines and the property belonging to the Company as guarantee of the loan agreed upon, and gives full power to Mr. Bavier-Chauffour, managing director of the Company, to pass and sign any acts or deeds necessary to that effect."

Mr. Keewick seconded, and the motion was carried. The Chairman then proposed a number of modifications of the Articles of Association, as recommended by the directors. The first was to transfer the registered head office from Hongkong to Haiphong; the next altered the status of delegate directors; the third reduced the time for sending a copy of the Commissioners' report to France from forty days before the meeting to twenty, for convenience, and a similar change was made in the length of public notice of such meeting. The changes were all agreed to unanimously, and the proceedings then terminated.

THE growth in the popularity of golf, hitherto called "Scotch marbles" by profane cricketers and others, is really remarkable. A few months back, or say a couple of years ago, says the Ceylon correspondent of a contemporary, the sight of men going about with clubs—i.e. believe that is the proper term for the implements of war—would have excited some comment and perhaps a smile. Now, however, grave and potent signers are to be seen in dozens of an afternoon meaning business with their clubs, and a few little white balls which seem to require so much trouble to get into the holes made for them. Three years ago the local Club had about 40 members, of whom but few played; now it boasts of 100 residents, all of whom play, and their number is daily increasing. Even ladies are taking to the game, and that puts the last seal on its popularity. Galle, Matara, Nuwara Eliya and some planting districts have their links, and in a short while there will hardly be a station in Ceylon without them. That the pastime is eminently suited to the climate I admit, but it can hardly be called a many game in the usual acceptance of that term. It is a splendid pastime for the middle-aged and elderly, but rather "mild" for the young and active. Football I gave up but recently, and the day will certainly come when cricket and tennis will be for me only a recollection and an everlasting joy. When that time comes I will take to golf as the solace of my declining years.

THE nine gallant "tars" arrested by Inspector Cochrane at Shau-ki-wan, charged with piratically stealing 90 pigs, twenty-five tins of silver, and a large quantity of clothing from a junk on the high sea, were again brought before Mr. Wodehouse at the Police Court this morning, when his Worship discharged all the prisoners but the three who had previously admitted their participation in the crime with which they were charged. One of these again urged that as the offence was committed in Chinese waters it really did not concern the British authorities, one lot to be no purpose, for he and his two fellow-offenders were promptly committed for trial at the Criminal Sessions. The other five, when liberated "made tracks" out of the police compound in about the quickest time on record, and steered a straight course for the more congenial Taling-shan. The Shau-ki-wan butcher charged with being in unlawful possession of some of the "stolen" pigs was then put on the "stand."

Mr. Hastings, of Messrs. Wotton and Deacon's office, who defended him, said that his client bought the swine in good faith, not knowing that they were stolen, and paid full price for them. As the police were unable to prove the defendant's guilt he was let off his Worship remarking that there was no doubt whatever but that he did know where the "grunter" came from, but that the police being unable to actually prove the charge, there was no alternative but to dismiss the case with a caution, and make no order as to the future custody of the seven pigs seized. Mr. Hastings then began to plead for the return of the pigs to his ill-used client, but his Worship put on the clause by saying "I repeat, I make no order about the pigs. Prisoner discharged."

THERE will be a game of polo at Causeway Bay to-morrow afternoon, commencing at 5.30 o'clock.

THE ACCIDENT TO CAPTAIN PATERSON.

Lieut. Sutherland, writing to Major Hannay from Negri Sembilan, under date 6th ult., sends the following details of the accident to Captain Paterson, which appear in the Regimental News:—

Dear Major:—I have this morning sent a telegram to Malacca, to be wired on to you, informing you of an accident to Captain Paterson, which no doubt you will receive all right. The news, much exaggerated, is all over the country here, and I thought it as well to wire in case somebody else, thinking it a good para. for Singapore. The Colonial Surgeon, who took my telegram down knows Paterson's people and will write to his father by first mail; as there is no danger we have not considered it necessary to telegraph. As regards the accident, the circumstances are briefly as follows:—

At 6 a.m. on the 27th July, we left our temporary camp to go down stream, on our way back to our headquarters, about 25 miles off. After three hours' paddling we found elephant tracks that morning, which we at once started to follow up. We halted after three hours' hard walking, and as we did not appear to be catching up the elephant, decided to make our way back to our camp and breakfast.

Taking a different direction we had only gone a few hundred yards when we found we were right on the top of the elephant. P. took the four bore, and I a double twelve, and in a few minutes we were in sight of him feeding away from us; P. was to have the first shot. The beast went zigzagging about, pulling down a branch here and there, and once I think I could have shot him, while I stopped for a minute thinking the beast was coming back to me. P. went on and I lost sight of him. A minute after there was a crash and a terrific trumpeting; I knew the beast had winded us, and stopped for P. to fire before I expected it. He called out to me by name, and, being in an ordinary state of voice, and believing it to be merely a caution, and that perhaps he meant the elephant was coming my way, I did not answer. A second later there was a cry of "Help." The Malays and I shouted out; another crash through the jungle, and the elephant, a small one, with tusks not more than 2 or 3 feet long, was standing in the open before me at about 25 paces. I gave him both barrels and I believe wounded him badly, but have had no opportunities of finding out. I at once ran up to him, and found him lying on his side, dead, though out of sight, and with a lot of blood coming from his left leg. I gave him whiskey and since then have gathered the following particulars:—

Having got close up to the elephant he aimed and pulled, but the cartridge missed fire; elephant at once charged; he looked round for gun and, bearing no other, reloaded, and saying to himself, one shot for life, waited till the elephant was within 5 yards, when gun missed fire again; he struck him over the head with rifle; left tusk caught him on left upper thigh and spun him round; elephant then drove tusk clean through left thigh, luckily outside bone, right tusk cutting his head slightly over right ear, and attempted to crush him, which P. prevented by hanging on to right tusk. Then, I imagine, our shouts frightened the beast and he flung P. away and bolted. I banded wounds up with strips of my shirt, and keeping our head tracker, Suntu, a most excellent man and sportsman, with us, I despatched the other three to look for praus and bring up food, etc., and more coolies to carry P. to camp. This was about 12.45. We had each had a cup of cocoa in the morning, but nothing solid since the night before; we had no biscuits with us; there was no water and I had nearly half a bottle of whiskey in my flask. About a Suntu said it was going to rain and made a shelter of palm leaves, under which we made a move and sat down to wait for the coolies, whom I expected about 4. We had a heavy thunderstorm, which was most lucky, as P. had a raging thirst and we were able to get him some water. The coolies did not appear till 5 a.m. the following morning. The horrors of that night in jungle without water, and P. asking for it all the time, are more than I can attempt to describe to you. About 7 a.m. Suntu found water, and we were able to keep P. well supplied after that. Coolies brought food, but nothing P. could touch except a little cold gravy and some brandy. We made a litter and started at 11 to carry him 6 miles to the river. Four men in front cut the way, and we got through well, considering all things. At 4 p.m. we then down stream, and at an hour till I found a suitable spot for a camp and was able, about 10 hours after the accident, to wash P.'s wounds. Following morning at daylight I sent one prau up stream with letter to Lister there, and another down to Hall at Tamplin, asking for doctors. I had a house built over P., the kajang shed in which we were, and waited for assistance. Washed wounds twice daily and kept P. going with soup, eggs, and lime juice. Meritfully we had bandages and carbolic oil with us, and when 3 days after the accident we got our stores up from head-quarters, plenty of carbolic acid, with which I washed the wounds. After waiting 4 days and hearing nothing about doctor, we decided to go up stream and make our way here. Left camp at district, and various rumours are afloat as to what was said at the interview. It is reported that the former cited the proverbial philosophy of his country in the phrase, "When water comes, stop it with earth; when rebels come, stop them with troops;" to which the other replied with the equally conclusive aphorism, "Let water take its course." (jen shui tau lu). Each of these principles is at different times acted upon by the Chinese authorities, so that each may claim to have law and precedent on its side. The result is the chaos of conflicting interests. The great flat is subdivided by lesser banks, which in past times have been thrown up in different directions to prevent a partial inundation from becoming a general one. Whenever the use of such division banks becomes apparent, the same phenomena exhibited at the main bank are exhibited also at the lesser ones. Those who live on the side which is higher are determined to raise the bank; those on the opposite side are resolved to cut it, and the inevitable issue is a series of fights, in which the banks are ultimately cut, as it is always easier to destroy than to preserve. If due measures had been taken by the district magistrates in advance, proclamations posted, and a small body of say fifty soldiers camped at the bank, by the Eminent official, it is thought that all this irregular and wasteful skirmishing might have been wholly prevented, and the ill will also, which is certain to result in similar fights and disasters in generations to come. But each official thinks that he has enough to do to attend to the countless de facto fills which are forced upon him, without going out of his way to prevent others which may not come until he has been transferred to some better post. Thus in all departments of the government, "laissez faire" is the real ruler of China. To increase the miseries of the poor people, victims of circumstances, and of such an absence of system, there have been again many unusually heavy rains, which added to all that went before, have made this part of the province a wilderness of water. The village in which these lines are written is at this moment surrounded with an unbroken sheet of water, flowing with a strong current, and for the past two days steadily rising a part of the time at the rate of an inch an hour. Thick earthen ramparts and heavy gates are melted down by its destructive course, and the foreign hospital is in danger of being put in soak. Yet all this might at any time be stopped at once, by letting the unwanted floods down into the "under-the-bank" region, which is already flooded, as above described. But such a disposition of the waters would not suit the villages on the edge of the bank, although the land is certain in any event to be fatally swamped within forty-eight hours, and a little more water would make no difference. They have closed all the avenues of escape, acting not on the maxim, "let water take its course," but upon the rival aphorism, "when water comes, stop it with earth." Their village is a large one, and ours is small. There is a vivid recollection of a similar state of things thirty years ago, when our village cut the dyke, and was prosecuted at law, lost its case, and had to apologise by expensive theatricals. Warned by this experience, our village will neither try to let the water out, nor to stop its arrival, but will let it flow on, and will not be troubled by a few men plugging up a dyke, or miscalculating a road, by which this water is distributed in all directions. To dam it up would be to incur the hostility of those villages which would thus be more deeply drowned, all of which are impressed with the correctness of the axiom, "let water take its course." Our village is connected with nearly all the families in the nearest of these half-drowned villages, by a tangle of marriage alliances, and the ill-will and lawsuits sure to ensue are more dreaded than the water, so nothing is done. Over the villages, beyond ours, do not, however, take this view of the case and have stopped all the roads, apply called road gutters, and being thus caught in a pocket are left to soak, until the water subsides, which will not be for at least a month, even if the water does not rise higher, and no more heavy rains follow (both very uncertain conditions, as we are only one-third through the sixth moon). In a perfectly flat country, it is a matter of constant surprise, whence such torrents of water come. An old course of the Yellow River, not far away, is the visible source, and the floods are described as rising till they come to the "highway" from Tientsin to the south, which being lower than any other part of the country, acts as a perfect canal. The country abounds in the deep cuts, just mentioned, once level roads, and as no one not immediately threatened ever stops these up, no matter what the extent of the flood, each one of them in turn acts as a small canal to facilitate the distribution of the overflow. By this judicious means, devastation and ruin are brought within the reach of the poorest village, and the richest of them cannot expect to escape. A report is in circulation that a part of the floods came from the Chao Wang river, one of the larger escape pipes of the Grand Canal. As there are fish several inches long in the lakes outside our large gate, this theory assumes a certain plausibility. The effect of all this upon the average of the crops, can not yet be foreseen, but the special result in limited districts must be great misery. It is remembered with dismay that in the great flood of 1852, the region that the bank was flooded was not less than six years, and most of the population became refugees to more favoured districts. The floods are generally followed in the succeeding season by a plague of grasshoppers, which it is firmly believed, are developed from the spawn of the fish! The Chinese are never logical, and are frequently incensed and stolid, but when they do undertake to give reasons for phenomena the causes of which are unknown, it will go hard but they will succeed in the attempt. —N. C. Daily News.

In the spring at sowing time the witch goes round the country everywhere in search of a bride. If there be any one that looks at all well then she says she should become the wife of the Earl. Those unwilling have to buy their freedom by much money and get her to go elsewhere. But the poor have no help but to give up their daughters. The witch set up a great Palace on the banks of the river, spreads it with carpets and hangs it with curtains. The Bride is bathed and dressed in bridal array and lives in the Palace. Then a lucky day is chosen. A boat of reeds is made, and on that day she enters this boat, and after floating for some few miles sinks. The people deplore this expense, and are in dread of their daughters being chosen for the Earl of the River, therefore they send them secretly away, and that is why this city is so empty and desolate. The Prefect asked: "Did you ever have floods here?" "As we sacrifice a bride annually we have not offended the Earl of the River. Besides the city is both high and far from the river. We often have droughts." The Prefect said: "As the god is protecting you, when you give the bride I want to come and send her too and pray for you." When the time came the Elders informed the Prefect. He put on his best robes and went in person to the river side. All the city officers, the Superintendent of Police, and the district chiefs and village leaders were all present, as well as the people from all quarters far and wide. There were altogether many thousands of spectators. The Superintendent of Police and the leaders led the Chief Witch before the Prefect. She was attended by over twenty young women richly dressed with silks and ornaments all perfumed. The Prefect said: "May I trouble you, the Chief Witch, to let me see the Bride of the Earl of the River?" The old Witch ordered one of her maids to fetch her. The Prefect saw her new clothes and stockings, but observed that she was not beautiful, but quite ordinary. Then he said to the Chief Witch and to the Superintendent of Police: "The Earl of the River is a noble God. If the bride is not beautiful she won't do for him. This Bride is common; we will select a better one for him. May I trouble the Chief Witch to go and report this from me to the Earl of the River?" With this he ordered his soldiers to throw the Chief Witch into the river. At this all changed their countenances and were very much alarmed. The Prefect sat silent for a long time and then said: "The Old Witch is incapable of managing this business. She has gone to the river this long time and has not returned with any reply. Let one of her young women go after her and tell her to return quickly." And with this the soldiers threw one of them also into the river. But as she too was long returning he sent, once by one, three of them after the old witch, with the same result. Then the Prefect said: "These are women and cannot speak properly. May I trouble the Superintendent of Police to go into the river and explain matters clearly to the Earl?" When this officer was about to make excuses the Prefect sternly said: "Go at once and come back to let us know what the Earl says." Immediately the soldiers on the right and the left, without letting him speak, threw him also into the river. All the onlookers put out their tongues in terror. The Prefect stood looking at the river most earnestly for about two hours without saying a word. Then he turned round and said: "The Superintendent of Police is too old; we must get his sub-officer and the country chiefs." These were so frightened their faces became black with fear, perspiration ran down their cheeks and shoulders. They all fell down on their knees, and knocked their heads against the ground so that the blood came from their faces, and would not get up from their knees. The Governor then said: "Wait a little." All the people trembled with fear. After a pause he said: "The water flows along and never returns. Where is the Earl, who destroys the people's daughters? Your sin is great, and you should give life for life." Then all the people fell on their knees, knocked their heads against the ground and said: "True O Prefect, but it was the Witch who deceived us, not these men." The Prefect said: "The Witch is dead. Hereafter one says that the Earl wants a wife he shall be sent to the Earl. He commanded the officers and country chiefs to refund all the money falsely appropriated to the people, and told the Elders to look for old bachelors and give the wards of the old witch to them for wives. Thus ended witchcraft there. The people have made the Prefect immortal by their songs of praise to him. —Chinese Times.
